The Value of Volunteer Time

- An indication of the amount of community support for an organization
- Can be used in annual reports, grant proposals, and financial statements (see <http://www.fasb.org/pdf/fas116.pdf>)
- When someone with a specialized skill volunteers, the value of the work is based on the volunteer job, not the volunteer's professional earning power

2. If you don't ask, they can't say "YES!"

6. The Real Secret to Success
7. Questions and Discussion

1. Know What You Need

- What is the organizational structure?
- What volunteer jobs need to be filled?
- Develop written job descriptions for ALL jobs

Example: Team Volunteers

Elements of a Job Description

1. What skills and abilities are needed?
2. What are the tasks?
3. With whom will the volunteer work?
4. What supplies are needed?

2. If you don't ask,
they can't say
"YES!"

Be Specific About What You Need

- Use the job description to frame The Ask
- How does the job benefit the organization?
- What is in it for the volunteer?

Make It Meaningful and Manageable

If your volunteer job requires more than an average of 10 hours a week, you are setting yourself up for volunteer burnout and turnover

3. Preparation and Training

Supplies and Logistics

- What supplies are needed?
- Who provides the supplies?
- How are supplies acquired, purchased, and delivered?
- What happens to leftover supplies?

Train and Explain

What do your volunteers need to know to do their jobs?

- Written instructions or diagrams
- Oral explanations
- Demonstration of tasks
- Explanation of “the way we do things here”
- Who do I go to for help?

4. Get stuff done

Doing the Work

- Who will support and supervise volunteers?
- Set priorities and know the back up plan(s)
- Incorporate volunteer feedback and suggestions into the job
- Engagement is often more important than perfection

5. Say “THANK YOU!”

Gratitude that Reflects how Volunteers See Themselves

Connected and resourceful - Know who to call and how to get things done

Technically competent - Experts

Team builders, peacemakers, and caregivers
- Looking out for the people on the team

6. The Real Secret to Efficient and Sustainable Volunteer Programs is in the Math

The Preparation Payoff

3 Parts Planning
